FLEVOLAND SURPRISE FROM THE SEA

Flevoland is the newest province of the Netherlands. It's a new piece of the Netherlands that used to be underwater so we can now live, work and especially enjoy ourselves there. Surrounded by dikes and lying 5 m under sea level, this province has enough space for new ideas, which is reflected all over. From its impressive history and traditional Dutch regional products to the new nature reserves, stunning architecture, various water sport possibilities and cosy hotspots. Flevoland, a true gift from the sea.

We look forward to meeting you in Flevoland.

JUST DO IT

Taken together, Flevoland's three polders form the largest piece of manmade land on the planet. The islands which already existed in the Zuiderzee (Schokland and Urk) were marooned in the new land when the sea was drained. Things happen here like nowhere else. Need a wind break... we simply put up wind turbines. And if a dyke needs to be rebuilt, we go for it in an entirely new way.

DESIGNED LAND, WILD LAND

Everything you see was created on the drawing board. The orderly parcels of agricultural land. The straight roads. The canals. And of course: the spaces dedicated to nature. These designated areas of natural beauty have continued to develop to become fascinating wild polder landscapes. A good example is the extensive wetland area in the Nieuw Land National Park, another is the Netherlands' largest continuous deciduous woods. We are currently creating the Marker Wadden group of artificial islands in the wide waters that surround Flevoland in a bid to attract more fish and birds to the Markermeer lake. Nature is already reclaiming its own, as of course it certainly should.

When the tulip and rapeseed fields bloom, Flevoland is transformed into a riot of intensely colourful hues. Our local food is appreciated across the globe. And between the fields, this is where the people realise their ideals. For example by creating amazing and sometimes even edible estates, yes... you read that right! Everything we want we create ourselves. That's how we do things in Flevoland.

GREEN IDEALS

100% NOW

No other landscape in the Netherlands breathes '20th century' as much as Flevoland does. The modern polder cities are in part architectural museums, featuring the work of such world renowned architects as Rem Koolhaas. There is also space for experimental designers to practise their craft. And nowhere else in the world will you discover so much spectacular landscape art in just one day. The province is continuously renewing. The ports and airports are state-of-the-art and maintained that way and plenty of opportunities exist for the self builders to realize their own dream houses. Here you even have the space to get together and construct your own neighbourhood.

FLEVOLAND INCOMPARABLE LAND

Flevoland, on the former Zuiderzee seabed, is like nothing else that exists; anywhere! Flevoland is obviously different. Something you will immediately recognise when you drive into the province. The crisp clear lines, the space, that modern twist; you can only be in Flevoland.

Nowhere else in the world you will discover so much spectacular landscape art in just one day

HOLLAND CITY, LAND OF WATER

The Netherlands is characterised by water and almost one-third of the country is below sea level. The Dutch response to water has seen the creation of innovative structures, the major reclamation of land from the sea, changes to the landscape and the accumulation of a wealth of knowledge about water management. That's not all; the country has also developed a huge range of recreational activities: on, under or alongside the water.

The Netherlands, Land of Water. This story line tells the special story of The Netherlands, Land of Water. There are 12 water icons in six regions and each of them tells part of the story. Flevoland 'the biggest land reclamation project in the world' is an important part of this story line. At Batavialand (the heritage park for the lowlands), you will discover everything about the unique history of Flevoland, and on Urk, home to the Schokland Unesco World Heritage Site, you will experience the story of two islands in the former Zuiderzee.

URK

Urk is a dynamic, traditional fishing village, sited on the shore of the IJsselmeer lake. For centuries Urk was an island in the Zuiderzee, the sense and atmosphere of which still permeates the village. The best way to experience Urk is to join a tour with an experienced local guide. As a group the walk will lead you through the narrow 'ginkies' (alleys), skirt the historic harbour area with its old fishing smacks, before passing small fishing cottages on the way to the IJsselmeer lake's last working fish market. A visit to Urk is incomplete without calling in at the museum, climbing the lighthouse, taking a boat excursion and eating some fresh fish.
